2.3 Timetable

Under normal circumstances (pre-Covid19), your contact time with your subject lecturer would be presented in a face-to-face format in lecture rooms and computer labs, alternating weeks between theory and tutorial/practical periods:

- One theory period as a formal lecture in a lecture theatre/computer lab venue:
 - The lecturer will present formal summaries and explanations of the relevant and topical content and knowledge that is regarded as useful in helping you to understand the necessary concepts.
- One tutorial period in a computer lab venue:
 - These are to be utilised as practical sessions where students are provided with exercises/readings/discussions/online quizzes that assist them in understanding the content taught in the theory periods. Researching information online relating to topics or assignments is encouraged. These sessions are also intended for working on formal assessments individually or within a group if so required. The lecturer is also able to provide assistance and feedback regarding formal assessments during this time.

However, due to government lockdown regulations that have been put into place to curb the spread of the Corona Virus global pandemic (Covid19), traditional face-to-face lecture and tutorial time will not be implemented for Term 1 of 2022. The format of Term 2 classes will be determined by government regulations and the university's assessment at the time. As outlined in the table in 6.1 below, Term 1 online lectures will take place via the learner management system (BlackBoard: Collaborate). Tutorial slots will alternate with lecture slots each week. Students are expected to work on formal assessments and complete tutorial work in the form of readings, online tasks or online quizzes during the respective tutorial sessions.

PLEASE NOTE: The course is divided into TWO components, namely Entrepreneurship and Academic Literacy. Both components are mandatory, and each are assigned dedicated slots on the timetable.

2.4 Learner Management System (LMS) – E-learning

BlackBoard will be used extensively as the learner management system (LMS). Class notes, lessons, assessment briefs and all announcements will be posted on this LMS. In addition to Blackboard, LinkedIn learning will be used for the entrepreneurship section of this course. You need to ensure you have access to LinkedIn Learning. The course module that we will be using on LinkedIn learning is called Become a Small Business Owner.

Note: Please ensure your student email is linked to your LinkedIn Account. Students who do not have access to LinkedIn to email enquiries@cput.ac.za

3. Study materials

Readings, class notes and lectures are provided by the lecturer and uploaded onto the learner management system (BlackBoard). In addition, LinkedIn learning will be used for the Entrepreneurial section of this course. Announcements will be made if any other platform is used to disseminate information or materials.

4. Assessment

4.1 Assessment policy and regulations

- The assessment types include individual and group assignments and an examination. All assessments are compulsory.

- Your understanding and application of various concepts are seen as most important and not merely your ability to memorise facts. The assessments will therefore help you to demonstrate this more effectively.
- Penalties for the late submission of tasks will be strictly enforced i.e. -10% per day. Under normal circumstances assignments that are more than one week late will not be accepted.
- Disciplinary procedures regarding irregularities during tests are fully explained in the assessment rules and regulations of the Cape Peninsula University of Technology.
- Any form of plagiarism is unacceptable and will be dealt with severely. Allowing classmates to copy your work makes you an accomplice to an act of plagiarism.
- Please note that ANY test/mark queries MUST be verified and confirmed before the next assessment takes place. Any dispute about an assessment MUST be dealt with before the next assessment or within two weeks after the assessment has taken place. No marks will be changed after this period.

5. Additional information

Your lecturer will monitor your class attendance. If you are absent from any class you may obtain zero for a test or assignment, scheduled for that class, unless you present a valid doctor's certificate. The lecturer must be contacted via email or telephonically if you cannot attend classes.
